Constipation

Causes fully half the sickness in the world. It retards the digested food too long in the bowels and produces biliousness, torpid liver, indigestion, headache, etc. Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It fastens at the left side under a tab, and the corresponding tab affords a convenient place for a pocket. Most of these skirts are unlined, and the finish at the foot is a narrow facing of the cloth and machine stitching.

This pattern is also given for misses of 14 and 16 years, and the number is 1086—Woodville Bicycle Skirt.

813—LADY'S BLOOMERS, OR FULL KNICKERBOCKERS AND LEGGINGS. Sizes medium and large.

The pattern for the knickerbockers is both practical and comfortable, adapted for bicycling, mountaineering, climbing, the gymnasium, and general outdoor exercise. There is becoming fullness at the belt, so they may be worn without the skirt, if desired, and may be made any preferred length. Serge, flannel, crepe, silk or satin may be used for this model. The lining is a matter of choice or necessity.

This shapely model for leggings buttons on the outside, and at the bottom is a strap that passes under the instep. Cloth and canvas are the popular materials, usually dark or of the same color as the costume. This model is also given for misses of 14 and 16 years. No. 1088—Misses Knickerbockers and Leggings. This outfit consists of three separate patterns, and special illustrations and full directions will be found on the envelope enclosing each pattern.

A BEAUTIFUL EASTER CUSTOM

The Advent of Resurrection Day Billed with Melody and Prizes

No more divinely appropriate expression of the Moravians' love of music and their appreciation of its inspiring power is to be found than in their sublime annunciation of the Resurrection day," writes Clifford Howard, descriptive of "A Moravian Easter Dawn," in the April Ladies' Home Journal. "Through the quiet streets of Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, in the early morning, the trombones walk from place to place, pouring forth their grand, inspiring anthem that arouses the slumbering town to the welcome knowledge of the advent of this glorious day. Now here, now there, now everywhere the light appear within the windows of the streets are thronged with people, young and old, wending their way from all directions toward the church, and greeting one another with loving salutations of the day. The Easter service is begun with the church and is continued there until the brightening sky announces the advent of the dawn. Then, in slow processions subdued and reverent, the people pass without the doors, and headed by the trombones, solemnly ascend the winding hill to their beloved and quaint old burying-ground.

"Within the close of this consecrated spot the congregation assembles and stands in a large semi-circle facing the eastern hill in fond anticipation of the emblem of its cherished faith. A little apart stand the ministers, and the trombone choir. Thus assembled, the services of song and responsive readings, begun in the church, is continued. A sense of deeper, more intense nervousness, the gathered throng, as on this cold, gray morning of the early spring they await, in spring communion with their departed loved ones, the Resurrection hour. Above the hill the dawning light appears. Then from the voices of the assembled host bursts a melody of rapturous song, a heartfelt hymn of praise and adoration, a spontaneous expression of joy, that starts in glad expression of triumphant hearts and mingling with the full, resounding strains of sweet-toothed trumpets and re-entrant trombones, arises with the warbling song of joyous birds in glad bosom to the splendid sky. For see! a radiant light o'erspreads the earth. A wondrous glory hails the newborn day. The sun appears in fulgent sublimity—God's symbol of the resurrection life, and earth and Heaven in exulting joy pour forth in glad, antiphonal praise. The Lord is risen! Hallelujah, praise the Lord!"

Progressive Farmer.]

An enamored young man of a certain nearby town addressed a marriage proposal to the subject of his adoration, as follows:

"My Dear —: I hereby announce myself a candidate for your hand, and shall hold all fair and honorable means to secure the nomination. I know there are many candidates in the field, and I hesitated long before entering the race, but now I am in to stay.

My views on love and matrimony have often been expressed in your hearing, and I need not repeat them here. You know I favor free coinage of silver to love—and a maintenance of free silver after marriage. If you decide to confer upon me the honor I seek, please fix the date of my election with your mother. I have no objection to her acting as temporary chairman of the temporary organization.

Should the result of the caucus prove satisfactory, we can soon hold the primary and select the date of the convention. I have never before decided to honor me, I will ask you to make the convention date as early as possible. Devotedly yours,

He received the following brief reply:

"Caucus unnecessary. Report on temporary organization satisfactory. Nomination unnecessary; come at once and fix date of ratification. Yours, only way to bring the people to their senses and lead them to a change in the financial policy as a means of relieving the ill we suffer.

Mr. BUTLER. Then the gentleman's argument is for us to increase these appropriations, and instead of voting $196,000, let us vote away $196,000, to let the country see how unworthy we are as their representatives.

Mr. TILLMAN. You will not get relief until you convince the masses of the people that there are a lot of robbers here representing the other robbers, and they must change the personnel of this body.

Mr. BUTLER. And the Senator is joining in the scramble, and says, "Let me share the booty while the robbery is going on. Let me in and I will be one of the robbers to convince the people that we are all robbers."

Mr. TILLMAN. We of the South all pay our share of taxes. We send North every year one hundred and fifty or seventy-five million dollars, and most of it never comes back.

Why let us have the $171,000 for improved mail service?

Mr. BUTLER. Every one of these excessive charges that is paid for carrying the mails over the country and for rent of postal cars that the Senator speaks of is paid to Southern railroads. They get all the excessive pay we were talking about today. But you are not satisfied with this excessive pay. You want to put a subsidy on top of it and in addition to that.

Mr. TILLMAN. I should like to stop the whole business; but we cannot do it; and I do not believe in depriving our people of this small benefit because of opposition to the policy pursued in conducting the Government.

Mr. BUTLER. Then let us vote against all subsidies. There are only a few in this bill. Let us vote against the West as well as South, and do our duty. This is not a subsidy for the benefit of the people. It is a subsidy for the benefit of the railroad kings, for them and them alone. It should not pass. You know it is wrong.

[The end.]

President John Smith, or the Story of a Peaceful Revolution.

"President John Smith" is the literary sensation of the year. This powerful political story is destined to mark an epoch in the social and political history of the United States, and to play an important part in shaping thought and molding future political action. It should and will be read by every American citizen who is interested in the great social and political problems now pressing for a solution.

The author, Frederick L. Adams, is one of the most famous newspaper writers in the United States. Mr. Adams wrote "President John Smith," three years ago. He did not believe that period ripe for its publication, and has patiently waited for the development of events. The prophetic chapters of "President John Smith" is now read as history. Every important forecast has been more than realized. This book is a history, a prophecy, a plan, a vision, a revelation of John Smith—plain American citizen—to the presidency of the United States. It is a story of peaceful revolution, a tale of the triumph of the majority after a series of reverses. It is a plea for majority rule. It is a scathing denunciation of the theory held by Dr. Lyman Abbott and other arch-apostles, that "government does not rest on the consent of the governed. It is American in every paragraph and line. It breathes the spirit of the majority and the constitution and as broad as the liberty inspired lines of the immortal Declaration of Independence.

In mechanical form the book is something of a novelty. The price of 25 cents for a new novel in paper covers, become pretty well established, and recent competition among publishers has been in the direction of giving the bulkier book possible for the moment. This has resulted in the use of inferior paper of dingy color and too stiff to handle with comfort. The publishers of the present book believe that the reader should have a book that is printed on creamy white paper, just thick enough to be opaque, and of a size convenient for the side pocket. (Cloth $1, paper 25 cents.)
